

MRS. PEASE WROTE MELANCHOLIC POEM ON DEATH OF GEORGE

PAIN IN HEAD, SHE SAID

His alleged relation to Mrs. Katharine Brown, a divorcee, who claims Pease is the father of her daughter, is the subject of the poem, which was written by the victim's mother on Upland road, Winthrop Highlands, which, with the report of the medical examiner, "induced the official death."

These verses, covering a page and a half of foolscap and composed by Mrs. Pease the day before her death in a period of reverie, clearly indicated the depressed state of her mind.

The poem, a theme in retrospect, revealed unmistakable traces of melancholia. It portrays the writer's sad days that were dark and dreary. It is tenderly referred to friends long departed.

"As I look through my window," was the theme of the verse that "soured from a troubled mind. And as Mrs. Pease, bride of two months and twice married, penned these verses she was unquestionably pained to glance out at the sea through the by-framed window of the little red cottage on the bluff at the foot of which her body, with neck slashed by a razor, was found floating the next day.

BROTHER FOUND VESSES

Mrs. Pease's brother, George H. Pease, found his sister's farewell note yesterday and notified the police. He was directed to turn it over to the Medical Examiner. It will figure as a feature exhibit at the inquest today. On that section of text was not made public.

COMPLAINED TO TENANT

As late as 7:30 on the night before, Mrs. Pease's body was found off North Street, she complained to a tenant, Mrs. Fred Papineau, C. No. 145 Crescent avenue that she was suffering from a sharp pain in the head. Mrs. Papineau lives on the top floor of the six-apartment house, the street front of which was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Pease.

"I went to the Pease flat to pay my rent Monday evening," said Mrs. Papineau, who was an important witness at the inquest today.

That was when Dan Cupid said "What's the big idea?" Because she said Ruth and admired her. He said much as he did. Any movie director specializing in romance would be tickled pink with such a cast for his scenario. But a really truly movie director would have to have an undertone of seriousness, a "heavy" touch to make it even more thrilling.

RUTH HAS GUN.
Ruth Carey, the blonde angel of the unusual triangle, has supplied the "heavy" touch to the situation. Ruth has "packed a gun" on her hip and is reported to be on her way to the home of Governor Cox to make any kind of reference to the man whom she has loved in her bitter past. A large percentage of the soldiers feel that they have been deprived of well deserved compensation in order to obtain restlessness that don't like to pay the soldier bonus and its veto is very much of a political issue.

The army abolishes some saluting nonsense. Men and officers need not salute except on military reservations, or when they speak to each other in uniform. That's common sense.

It would be a good thing now if the President would stop some of the saluting on military reservations and the public's money, when any important person from the President down to some small official appears in public. It is important that the public should be honored with their money, why not best a drum or hammer on a tin can and save money?

Winchester Wife Wins $45,000 Allotment Suit; Girl's Brother Involved

A love nest became the scene of a vampire when Mr. and Mrs. James O. Howard moved from Winchester to Castle, N. Y.

The aftermath came when Mrs. Howard was awarded $45,000 in an allotment suit at Warwick, N. Y., against Miss Margaret Pierce, twenty years old, member of one of the oldest families in that section and heiress of $400,000.

As the girl described the romance with Howard, who is twice her age, she was overcome with a surge of emotion and collapsed in a fit of weeping.

Howard exercised such an influence over her, Miss Pierce testified, that she could not resist him.

ACCUSED BROTHER

A child was born to Miss Pierce in a private hospital at Rochester, N. Y., in October, 1920. Her friendship with Howard blossomed into romance in November, 1921, shortly after he and his wife came on from Winchester, she admitted. Their intimacy started one morning, she said, when he entered her boudoir.

He was superintendent of the extensive Pierce farm.

She said her lapse into intimate relations was caused indirectly by her adopted brother, Paul Pierce.

"Paul Pierce started everything with me," she said. "I couldn't help myself."

Howard, she said, was the man who she met by that name. "I think it explains itself."

"WANTED YOU SO MUCH"

Numerous letters were introduced, one of them reading:

"I was awfully in love when I wrote this morning, and I couldn't get back to sleep again. I wanted you so much. Mother is going to be away tonight, and I want you to come over, and—"

The letter was written to Howard and signed Margaret.

Another letter, which was held to be Mr. Howard's characterization of Miss Pierce as a "vampire," contained an expression of Howard in these words:

"YOU ARE NOT IN LOVE IN ANYTHING"

"You are not in love in anything. I beg you to do it, and you didn't want to."

NOTES INTERPRETED

Mrs. Martha Howard, mother of James O. Howard, testified that her son and his wife lived happily together when they had their home in Winchester, but that she noticed a change in the conduct of her son when they moved to Castle and toward Miss Pierce.

She told of finding one of Margaret's love notes, and of seeing the girl beckon to her when she was alone. She also told of receiving a package containing her messages to "Charles" and signed "your devoted husband" and "your devoted little wife, Midge."

Notice of an arrest from the verdict was filed by Miss Pierce's attorney.

DEATH LIST

THEATRE CRASH MAY BE

Pittsburgh, Sept. 22.—Fifty-eight children, some of them suffering severely, today recounted the story of the collapse of the foyer of the Strand Theatre in Lincoln avenue here.

Madeline Kunkle, aged eight, one of those injured to the free swelling of the picture, "The Trap," was killed, and eighteen of the injured are in hospitals. Four are in a critical condition. Seven sustained broken arms or legs.

Free tickets had been issued to school children for yesterday's show. Scores of them, early stirred, clustered about the foyer awaiting admission. Then came the crash and the throng was covered with rocks and concrete. Their bodies were ripped and torn.

The alarm spread quickly and frantic parents sought the building, shrieking for their children. Cooler heads restrained the hysterical mob.

A city building inspector reviewed the ruins and reported the flooring had been improperly constructed. Sel Selnick, the proprietor, who was seriously injured in the crash, said the building was inspected two months ago and pronounced sound.

CREASY ONLY ONE GIRL, SAYS SISTER

Mischa, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Mrs. B. H. Warner, sister of William Creasy, made a statement which later may be taken to show a motive in the murder of which her brother is an trial here.

Edith Lawry, said Mrs. Warner, was the only girl with whom her brother William was carrying on an extended correspondence at the time of the killing of the pretty Prepost school teacher, June 22, last. To her knowledge she was her brother's only sweetheart.

Until yesterday it has been common belief that Creasy was pining for several girls. It was in fact that letters he had written other girls would be available before the trial ended. A memorandum containing the names and addresses of more than twenty-five girls was found in his possession the night of the shooting, it had been revealed.

Mrs. Warner said: "I saw that memorandum book. It came to me with it. I found out if I knew any of the women whose names and addresses were written in it. The book contained, principally the names of his four sisters. No names, cousins and old family friends."

James A. Creasy, Jr., supported his sister in this contention. He knew of only one girl other than Edith Lawry with whom William had corresponded.

It is reported that the twenty authorities are considering the possibility of examining the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills to make a more thorough examination. The authorities are not certain that only one weapon was used in killing the caddyman and his companion.

There is a difference of opinion as to how many times the victims were shot. One physician, who examined the bodies of the two women, said that he found only one wound in Mrs. Mills' head. Another, who looked at the bodies at the morgue, said he was certain there were four bullet wounds. The authorities are not certain that only one weapon was used in killing the caddyman and his companion.

KERRIDGE? KERRIDGE?

By The Flapper (Cory Frink)

"Cab? Cab, lady?"

"Who, me?"

I looked again at the old wrinkle with the two-quart Abraham Lincoln on his dome. He was a picture of old-fashioned, Back Bay dignity. With a broken-off whip in one hand and the reins held high in the other, he sat atop his kerridge, waiting, just waiting.

"Will you please drive the buggy the next customer you get?" I asked the caddy.

"Humm," sniffed the old caddy. "Des 'er tryin' up here, fair an' see how soon ya shove off."

"Why? Business rotten?"

"Well, I tell ya wot," the caddy took up, brightening with interest, "if it wasn't for a few o' the old-time quality folks over on Beacon street an' Boylston street, me'n Hamlet 'ud jus' simply hafta drive our buggy an' ourself's straight into 'Charles River."

The case's question was a legal point over the custody of the child. Dr. Abrams said today that about two weeks ago Professor Tiersman had asked him to make a test. Dr. Abrams will arrive in Chicago Monday.

CURLEY LAUDS ORPHANS' DAY SHOW PLAN

Mayor James M. Curley praised warmly today the plan of Thurston, the Mayor, and the Boston Orphan Asylum to give several hundred boys and girls in Boston orphan asylums a free afternoon of magic at the Thurston show at the Plymouth Theatre, Thursday, September 28.

The Mayor also declared himself "in" to the extent of arranging to help on the transportation problem. Which is a smart hint to owners of private motor cars in our city, so far with riches, to call on the Orphan Editor and offer their cars for the afternoon.

"Any effort on the part of Boston's public spirited citizens," said the Mayor, "to brighten the lives of these unfortunate little orphans is worthy of the highest commendation and aid."

WILL DELIGHT KIDDIES.

This effort of the Boston American to delight the orphans of the city by letting them see the magic of Thurston at the Plymouth Theatre is laudable indeed and meets with my heartfelt approval. This opportunity will be delightfully impressed on their plastic minds and, in later years, prove a pleasant memory to them. It is a philanthropy that will be well paid for in smiling faces and happy hearts."

Chester L. Campbell, manager of Boston auto shows and other big exhibitions, who said yesterday he would be "glad" to help, came through today with assurance that, through his connections in the auto dealing world, he would be able to provide transportation from the asylums to the theatre and back for two hundred boys and girls.

MORE CARS NEEDED.

That's the stuff! But, even with the help of the Mayor and Brother Campbell, more cars will be needed. The Orphan Editor is either Twist on this car proposition. He wants more.

If you can contribute your car for the afternoon of next Thursday, September 28, to go to one of the orphan asylums for some children, drive them to the matinee at the Plymouth Theatre, then call for them and take them back to their asylums—please call on, write or telephone the Orphan Editor. Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston. Telephone 5180 Main. And please do so as soon as possible.

The American is arranging this treat of magic for the children through the courtesy—warm, child-loving kindness, rather—of Thurston, the magician. Dr. P. C. Cohn, business manager for the magician, is helping in arrangements and will be on hand at the theatre to see that the orphan cause receive all attention.

7 HOMES ACCEPT.

The institutions and organizations are delighted and are accepting the invitations. Among those which will have children at the magical treat are:

- Home for Italian Children, Centre street, Jamaica Plain.
- Home for Destitute Catholic Children, Harrison avenue.
- Home for Jewish Children, Canterbury street.
- Home of the Angel Guardian, Perkins street, Jamaica Plain.
- New England Home for Little Wanderers, South Huntington avenue.

MAYOR QUINN FORBIDS USE OF HIS NAME

Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge today issued a statement to the effect that he is firmly opposed to Plan C form of commission government and that persons seeking a plan C reform for this through use of his name are acting without authority.

SAYS DE VALERA EPISCOPAL BAN HELPED KILL COLLINS

Dublin, Sept. 22.—Eamon De Valera was a member of the Republican detachment, which attacked Michael Collins, from ambush in County Cork, and shot him to death. It was charged today by Eamon McGarry, a member of the Dail Eireann, and an officer in the Free State Army.

"We know almost every member of that band which was engaged against Collins," said McGarry. "De Valera was present at that killing but he was not in command."

"There has recently been a peace move from the De Valera side, but the Free Staters have ignored it because De Valera has broken every pact he ever made. His forces are suffering continuous defeats. His men are deserting him. The morale is very low."

Set Clock Back One Hour When You Retire Tonight

Daylight saving in Massachusetts ends today. Tomorrow legal time throughout the state reverts to Eastern Standard time.

The change in clocks is to be made, officially, at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. At that hour all clocks are to be set back one hour.

A statement from the Boston Chamber of Commerce announces that in this, the fifth year of daylight saving, more people have benefited by the change than in any previous year. Beaches have been crowded during the extra hour of daylight in the evenings, while "twilight" baseball has flourished.

This is the result of the action taken here by the House of Deputies of the General Convention, of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States are inclined to marry divorced persons, right in cases where divorce has been granted on the ground of infidelity.

The former use of the church, namely forbade clergymen to perform a marriage ceremony where either party to it had been divorced by a court other than infidelity. The new canon does not provide punishment for members of the church disobeying it, but there was nothing before the convention today a resolution by Bishop Cameron of the Diocese of South Florida providing for the excommunication of persons marrying contrary to the divorce canon.

The Exiled Emperor Exposes His Innermost Thoughts to the World

KAISER'S MEMOIRS

The Man Tells:

"Still others say the Emperor should have killed himself. That was made impossible by my firm Christian beliefs. And would not people have exclaimed: 'How cowardly.' Now he chinks all responsibility by committing suicide." This alternative was also eliminated because . . .

(Alluding to the choice of Prince William of Wied as King of Albania): "It was particularly unpleasant to me that a German Prince should make a fool of himself there . . . the ambitious, mystically excited wife of the Prince saw in Albania the fulfillment of her wishes. And 'what woman wishes God wishes.'"

(Alluding to the educational methods of Germany before the Kaiser "reformed" them): "This degradation is all the more difficult to understand in view of the fact that the youth of Germany, although it was impaired in health by overstudy and not so toughened by sport as the English, achieved brilliant feats in the World war such as were nowhere equalled before."

"The road to compromise has been my road both in domestic and foreign politics."

He declares that when Bismarck's son conducted the foreign office his rudeness was such that when anybody left him "their coat tails stood right out behind them."

The Ex-Kaiser snapped walking in his garden.

The Emperor Says:

"Professor Roland Usher, the American, talked out of school and conclusively proved at whose door lies the guilt of the World war . . . America—or rather President Wilson—was resolved probably from the start, certainly from 1915—to array herself against Germany and to fight."

"The Prince (Bismarck) gave away to a violent fit of anger. He spoke about 'family dictation in England,' of interference from that quarter which must cease; how the Crown Prince and Emperor Frederick had been ordered about and influenced by his mother-in-law, wife, etc."

"I stuck to my ideas, adding in support of them the maxim of Frederick the Great, 'I wish to be King of the Rable.'"

"I refused to abdicate and declared that I would gather troops together and return with them in order to help the government to maintain order in the land."

"Thus the decision as to my going or staying, as to my renunciation of the Imperial Crown and retention of the Royal Crown of Prussia, was summarily snatched from me. The army was shaken to the core by the erroneous belief that its King had abandoned it at the most critical moment of all."

Rose Fessenden Will Be an October Bride, Says Betty Alden

MISS ROSE FESSENDEN

By BETTY ALDEN.

ROSE FESSENDEN, with her very light hair and deep blue eyes, is always easily recognized wherever she goes. She is a keen rider, is the youngest daughter of the Sewall H. Fessendens, and one of the most active and popular girls of her years.

Like many another fashionable bride-to-be, Rose Fessenden has elected to be married in October, a month which is fast making June look to its laurels in the way of brilliant occasions. I expect that when she becomes the bride of young Edward Bigelow on the 25th of next month, that one of the season's most fashionable crowd of wedding "fans" will make its way to the Unitarian Church in Brookline for the occasion.

Mrs. Fessenden was a Lee, and there are a host of notable connections on all sides of the family. The oldest daughter, formerly Miss Caroline Fessenden, married Oliver Ames, Jr.; another daughter married Freddie Bask of New York, while Miss Louise Fessenden still remains unmarried. Rose's friends call her, made her debut during the Winter of 1920, and since that time she has been prominent in the Varsity Club shows. Her parents have a town house on Raleigh street, and a suburban home in Chestnut Hill and a summer place in Manchester. During the past months she and her fiancé, a Harvard '21 man, were often seen together at the various affairs held along Shore.

Following the ceremony next month, there will be a large reception at the Chestnut Hill house, which, I believe, is the favorite domicile of the Fessenden family.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT A. LOVETT, the Horatio Nelson Slaters, Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Coriart (Isadora Bliss), and the Payne Whitneys, all of them well-known in Boston, were among the tremendous crush of guests at the wedding of Miss Katherine MacKay and Kenneth O'Brien, both of New York. The ceremony was solemnized in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Chapel at Roslind, L. I., and was followed by a very large reception at "Harbour Hill," the summer place of the bride's father at Roslind. It was unquestionably one of the most "swaggy" affairs which Gotham society has seen, abounding with special trains from New York, gorgeous decorations and priceless wedding gifts.

Mrs. Moorhead Patterson (Elsie Parsons), who has been living in Cambridge during the past Winter, was one of the bridesmaids, as was also Miss Evelyn Wadsworth. The latter, a daughter of Senator and Mrs. James Wadsworth, was also among the attendants at the wedding of Miss Alice Harding and Robert Thompson Pell, solemnized this month at Beverly Farms.

LAST Winter, when Eleanor L. Musgrave and Alice Underdonk "came out," they were seen here, there and everywhere to-gether—quite as inseparable as the Gold Dust Twins, in fact. However, as Alice Underdonk took a cottage for the season at York Harbor, Me., and Eleanor in the summer on the North ter Than His French Fiancee! Miss Marcella Dailhere, who was jilted by Prof. Darbin Rowland of Greenfield University, Ind., when the young Parisienne made sarcastic remarks about America. She saw nothing to admire here, she said. They were to have married when she arrived. Now she's going back alone.

Among the brides of the coming month will be Miss Rose Fessenden, whose marriage to Edward Bigelow is scheduled for the last Saturday in October. (Photo by White.)

TURKS SPREAD VICTORY PROPAGANDA OVER

Asia Minor! Millions of these tricolor posters are being dropped from airplanes by followers of Mustafa Kemal Pasha. The inscription on the wing of each monoplane reads: "By the grace of Allah the way to victory will open soon." Kemal is characterized as "the hero of Turkish independence." The propaganda has just reached America on a ship that left Smyrna a day before it was burned and sacked.

shows how Grace Thompson, seven years old, of No. 12 Milton street, was accosted by the stranger. He offered her candy, five pennies and an auto ride if she would accompany him. Her mother caught him and the man fled. He later accosted another girl in the neighborhood. Mothers of girls in the district are terrified and police are making every effort to find the prowler, who seeks little victims boldly, day and night.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY URGED TO USE

its power to rebuke Representatives who failed to aid the bonus! The 600 members who gathered at the State House for the third annual convention applauded the suggestion made by John L. MacDonald, who represented Mayor Curley. Mrs. Elton A. Baber, president (in circle) said 8,000 new members had been added to the auxiliary.

This Day in Our History—September 23, 1922

THIS is the anniversary of the naval battle, in 1779, between the Bonhomme Richard and the English frigate Serapis, in which Paul Jones compelled the enemy to surrender, giving a blow to English arrogance on the seas.

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He begins to fall in love with her.

Now Go On With the Story

MISS SHARP arrived about 11 today. Her cheeks were quite pink when she came in, and I could see she was warm with the sun. I wish I had remembered to send to the station to meet her.

"Do you think we shall be able to write?" I asked her. "I have only the present chapter to do, and the books will be finished."

"Why not here as well as any other place?"

"Does not environment matter to you?"

"I suppose it would if I were creating it does not matter now."

"The you ever write?" I asked her.

"I write a story," she said. "I don't prevent myself from writing too much."

"Oh! I should like to see it. I'll write one, too," I said.

"I was alone," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I'll write one, too," I said.

"I was asked of French politics next—that is, she answered everything I said with intelligence, and then let the subject drop immediately. Nothing could be more exasperating because I knew it was deliberate and not that she is stupid, or could not keep up the most profound conversation. This seemed to know the war situation very well. Then I began about French literature and at the end of the meal had dragged out enough replies to my questions to know that she is an exceptionally cultivated person. Oh! what a quantity of accurate matter I could break down this wretched barrier of her reserve!"

"And I am sure I do hope she liked it—but she refused a cigarette when I offered her one."

Autumnal Equinox Today

ABOUT 3 o'clock this afternoon, Eastern standard time, the sun enters the redial sign Libra, marking the Autumnal equinox. From now on nights will be longer than days, until late in December, when the sun turns north.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

New York, Sept. 23.—In reply to many questions, from both his and little people:

Money again I write, "Those who buy stocks are over markets," I still feel exactly the same way, even though you can now buy 1400 marks for a dollar.

Germany, I think, nothing of adding twenty thousand million marks—twenty billion marks—of currency in one week. In fact, the dollar announces she is now ready to print seven billion marks a day. So long as she can get divided for dollars to pay more for marks than they cost to print, she is likely to keep her printing press running twenty-four hours a day.

I would call the German mark a poorest speculation now in vogue.

After you hear no more about it, the idea of bringing about a merger of Armory & Company and Wilson & Company was not dreamed.

Samuel M. Newberry, president of the Metropolitan Trust Company of New York and was a treasurer of Armory & Company, is one of those kindly investors, Philip D. Armory, president of Armory & Company, is a director of the same institution, and Mr. M. Newberry has always been highly respected by J. C. O'Brien, Jr., head and front and shoulders of the great packing house of his father.

From a strictly personal point of view, a combination of the J. C. O'Brien and Thomas H. Newberry, would be a very peculiarly happy, as Mr. O'Brien has reached an age where he could make an ideal chief executive of the position of chairman of the board, while Tom Newberry, with enough and vigorous enough and enthusiastic enough to make an ideal president.

Canadian dollars, for the first time in years, this week brought 150 cents of American money. This is another way of saying that American dollars brought a premium in Canada.

It is not a good thing for the world when the currencies of all leading nations are restored to a stable normal basis. Very few nations however, will have to exchange entirely new currencies for their currencies. Germany, make no mistake about it, is one of them.

Going down the docks to have lunch with a friend on board the Anchor Line Algeria. I had two surprises, one in the form of sight, the other in the form of tone of the iron work of the ship.

Climbing up the gangway, I saw that the iron work of the ship was in the right hands. I discovered, to my surprise, that the iron work of the ship was in the right hands. I discovered, to my surprise, that the iron work of the ship was in the right hands.
